Simple Yet Very Effective.

The dress here shown is comparatively simple, yet serves to show the rich silk poplin of which it is composed to the fullest advantage. To a round plain yoke the silk is gathered full, and, while it is at the pides caught of the full silk poplin of the property one alarm was sent out, however, and the men of Engine No. 12 had the fire completely out within ten minutes after their arrival.

Daniel J. G. F. Clan, a printer, who occupied the fifth floor, was in a terrible state of mind over the damage to his stock by water. The three lower floors were occupied by Thomas Russell, the bookbinder. The damage to the building by fire was less than
